P.V. Item-2
5
2110648
5092-E

THE

AMERICAN

CATHOLIC QUARTERLY

REVIEW.

Bonum est homini ut eum veritas vincat volentem, quia malum est homini ut eum veritas vincat invitum. Nam ipsa vincat necesse est, sive negantem sive confitentem.

S. AUG. EPIST. CCXXXVIII. AD PASCENT.

VOLUME XXII.

FROM JANUARY TO OCTOBER, 1897.

PHILADELPHIA:
CHARLES A. HARDY,
PUBLISHER AND PROPRIETOR,
505 CHESTNUT STREET.

AP2
.A332

64693

COPYRIGHT, 1897,

BY

CHARLES A. HARDY.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

PAGE

CARDINAL LAVIGERIE. By Wilfrid C. Robinson, . . . . . 1

The sympathy and enthusiasm of St. Wilfrid reproduced in Cardinal Lavigerie; Many common characteristics between these two great figures; Lavigerie's worldly parents; The humble instruments through which he derived his early religious belief; His gratitude in after-life; At St. Sulpice; Foundation of the Œuvre des Ecoles d'Orient; The great massacres of Lebanon; Lavigerie's first contact with Eastern infidelity; Finds his vocation; His dream; The Bishopric of Algiers and Marshal MacMahon; Foundation of the work for the conversion of Africa; Begins his rule with an example of severity; Marshal MacMahon opposes his plans for evangelization; The Emperor also; Lavigerie stands firm, and wins; His patriotism; Raised to the cardinalate; Letter to the Count de Chambord; Pope Leo and the duty of French Catholics; The Cardinal announces the new policy; A critical moment; The anti-slavery crusade begins in Africa; His personal characteristics; His death.

THE CHIPPEWAS AND OTTAWAS: FATHER BARAGA'S BOOKS IN THEIR LANGUAGE. By Richard R. Elliott, . . . . . 18

Territory of the Iroquois Confederacy; A common dialect spoken; Beginning of American control; Important treaties with the confederates; Cessions of territory to the United States; Father Baraga's Chippewa converts; Hereditary disinclination to work; Benedictine Fathers among the Chippewas; Large efforts of the Protestant Episcopalians, but poor results; The Canadian Chippewas; The Oblate Fathers in the Northwest Territory; Pontiac's Ottawas; Activity of the Quakers; Father Baraga and the Michigan Ottawas; Early philological work; Begins publication of works in the Ottawa language; And later on in that of the Chippewas; Great value of his printed works to Catholic missionaries.

A GLANCE AT THE REIGN OF ST. LOUIS. By Rev. Reuben Parsons, D.D., . . 47

Results of the battle of Bouvines; Inception of modern French national outlines; An ideal Christian kingship; High purposes of St. Louis' reign; Repression of the lawlessness of the great feudal lords; Selected as arbitrator between the English king and his barons; The turbulent German Emperors and their preposterous pretensions; Missionary enterprises in the East; Personal dispensation of justice at home; Tranquilizing effects of his régime; Flawless character of the monarch in every possible relation; "The divine right of kings" as exemplified by his interpretation; The Church and the question of mundane authority; Dicta of St. Paul, St. Thomas, Suarez, Bellarmine, Beaumanoir, and Marsilio; Charlemagne and the "Chanson de Roland"; Consideration of the kingly as opposed to the popular claim of right; Beginnings of the feudal system; Misrepresentations of Renan concerning the assertion of Gallicanism; St. Louis falsely quoted; Forgery of "the Pragmatic Sanction;" Cordial feelings of Gregory IX. toward the King and singular privileges with regard to the excommunicated; Firm front of St. Louis toward the extraordinary pretensions of Frederick II. to the Papacy; Misrepresentations of Matthew Paris; Acknowledgment of the Popes as supreme arbiters in international disputes; Penitential inauguration of the Seventh Crusade; St. Louis as a prisoner; His virtue and justice overawe the Saracen emirs; His ideas regarding the proffered sovereignty; The Eighth Crusade; St. Louis, smitten by an epidemic, composes his last testament; Sublime faith of the Middle Ages; His ideal that of a kingly missionary to all lands; Michelet's suggestions of skepticism refuted.

ASPECTS OF PESSIMISM. By Rev. James Kendal, S.J., . . . . . 74

Pessimism defined; Hellenic and Roman ideas; Leibnitz and his school; Shakespeare's philosophical lessons; Effects of the Renaissance; Schopenhauer's gloomy predications; Hartmann's "Philosophy of the Unconscious" anticipated him; The idea of moral evolution; William Watson's poetry; The theory of an indifferent God; Poetry and "culture" as substitutes for religion; The aims of life the measure of its value; The miseries of life make difficult the idea of a beneficent Creator; High office of the Church in reconciling fact and belief; Unhappy position of Agnostics; Successful villany and unmerited misfortune difficult examples to reconcile with the common Fatherhood of God; Too much disregard of material things in the higher pursuit of the spiritual charged against Catholics; Baselessness of the general inferences drawn from specific examples; The Crusades as the origin of Italian prosperity; The Church inculcates the true relation of mundane and spiritual things; Egotism and self-effacement exemplified; Father Hecker's view; Attitude of the Church toward scientific discovery; Growing dulness of the general moral sense in regard to sin; The emancipation of the Christian republics by Pope Alexander III.; Reforms of Gregory VII.; Immense possibilities still before the Church; We cannot truly be measured by material or even intellectual standards.

PAGE

CHURCH AND STATE. By R. J. M., . . . . . 98

Popular misconceptions on union or separation of Church and State; Evil example of Luther's revolt; Shocking propositions of the Secularists; Religious tendency of the United States' Government; This tendency pervades the whole national system; Repugnance to a State Church; Misconceptions of Catholics on the absorption of spiritual power by the State; Protestant objections founded on purely commercial reasons; The true Catholic doctrine on the respective functions of Church and State; The Encyclical "Longinqua Oceani"; Pagan characteristics of modern civilization; The province of the Church in politics; Cardinal Tarquini's views; The reasoning of St. Thomas Aquinas; The outlook for a perfect union of Church and State.

HYPOTHETICS. By Rev. Ernest R. Hull, S.J., . . . . . 124

Hypothesis, not necessity, the parent of discovery; Samuel Taylor Coleridge a great thinker but a poor worker; The more practical hypothetics of Watts and Schliemann; The higher criticism staggered by recent oriental discoveries; Mr. Puller and the "Clementine Recognitions"; His edifying humility and his worthless base of argument; Logical method of testing the value of a hypothesis; Descartes' substitute for scholastic philosophy; Kant's system of "Pure Reason" ends in Pantheism; His literary merit and his solemnly humorous anti-climax.

PROTESTANTS AND THE PRINCIPLE OF AUTHORITY IN RELIGION. By F. W. Grey, . . . . . 141

Hereditary faith, its advantages and its drawbacks; Effects of the Bull on Anglican orders on the Nonconformists; Sincerity of the Dissenters' hatred of "Popery"; Influence of parental example in determining continuance in or departure from a given form of belief; The principle of authority weakened by the hereditary system, when the question is inwardly debated; Protestant tradition at base identical with that of Catholics; The "moral certainty" of Protestants identical with the "infallibility" of Catholics.

THE CLERGY AND THE SOCIAL PROBLEM. By Rev. George Tyrrell, S.J., . . 151

Modern views of the "priest in politics"; Supineness on public questions incompatible with the priestly function; Urgent reasons for activity, especially in social questions; Compassion for human suffering a true note of spiritual grace; To the priest this obligation is doubly compulsive; The laboring classes and the poor especially the care of the Church; The social problem really an ethical problem; Laveleye's erroneous theory of the reason of the Church's activity in German social questions; The part of heresies in the evolution of the Church; Her action in social questions not based on selfishness, but true charity and zeal for souls.

THE PROTEST OF COMMON SENSE AGAINST SOME COMMON NONSENSE. By Vincent D. Rosman, . . . . . 160

Catholic laymen, from insufficient training, often unable to defend their doctrine and belief on fundamental articles; Points too profound even for the learned to define; Donoso Cortes on the dual character of the truths of religion; The theories of modern English agnostics opposed to common sense; Herbert Spencer's abortive reasoning; Materialistic Monism; Philological absurdities outdone by agnostic arguments; Professor Henry Drummond's amazing adaptability and shallowness; Simple answers for Catholic defenders of the truth; Christ's provisions for the transmission of truth and grace.

THE MEANING OF SCRIPTURAL NUMBERS. By Rev. Joseph H. Rockwell, S.J., 178

Pythagoras the reputed originator of symbolism in numbers; His theories derided by St. John Chrysostom; The Neo-Platonists exercise an influence over the early Fathers; The fatalistic system of Philo the Jew; St. Augustine believes in a symbolic meaning in certain numbers; His explanation of the "days" of creation; An obscure reference of St. Ambrose; Attempt to decipher the riddle; Probability of an early language of numbers; The theory of their relation to great facts not to be lightly set aside.

SCIENTIFIC CHRONICLE. By Rev. T. J. A. Freeman, S.J., . . . . . 197

Artificial silk; Some new points about X-rays; Prevention of injuries.

AUTHENTICITY OF THE BOOK OF ACTS. By Rev. A. J. Maas, S.J., . . . . . 225

Opinions of M. Renan on the authorship of the Acts; Disagrees with Professor Harnack's conclusions; Dr. Bliss attributes the authorship to St. Luke, and Professor Ramsay controverts the deduction; Examination of the conflicting arguments of these eminent Greek philologists; The Tübingen theories of "purpose" writing; Reasons against the admission of this view; Evidently a faithful epitome of the conflicts and troubles which arose in the endeavor to make the new doctrines acceptable to both Jew and Gentile; Archæological discovery confirms the technical background of the history of the Acts; Evidence of the authorship from the diction of the work; the first person plural, as used in the Acts, and why it is introduced; Final reasons for regarding St. Luke as the real author of the Acts.

LACORDAIRE AND LAMENNAIS. By Rev. Reuben Parsons, D.D., . . . . . 256

Spurious liberalism at the beginning of the century; Deadly effects of the secular university; Eloquence of Lacordaire; Legal prophecies; Forsakes the bar and turns to the Church; Associated with Lamennais in his political and social struggles; The famous essay on "Indifference"; The condemnation of the Avenir; Parting of Lacordaire and Lamennais; Vast crowds of men listen to Lacordaire at Notre Dame; He is admitted to the French Academy; His death; Lamennais' pride and obstinacy; Celebrates his last Mass; His melancholy years of self-ostracism from the Church; His tragic death; His power as an author; His overweening pride; Pantheistic traces in his philosophy.

PAGE

THE NEW POLITICAL ISSUE IN IRELAND. By John J. O'Shea, . . . . . 280

Substantial grounds for Ireland's Dissatisfaction under the Union; Deceptive basis for proportionate taxation taken by Mr. Pitt; Mr. Grattan's objection; How the fusion of the English and Irish Exchequers was brought about; Prosperity of Ireland under Grattan's Parliament; Its present-day decay; Overmanning the public service in the English interest, and charging Ireland with the cost; Taxation per head in Ireland double that of England; Immense quantities of land gone out of cultivation; Rapid decline in population and wealth; False charge of excessive drinking brought against the Irish; Disproved by Parliamentary returns; Callousness of English statesmen when convicted of public wrong-doing; Mr. Pitt's avowed object frustrated, and his fiscal stipulations disregarded; The cause for justice to Ireland irresistible.

THE TRAPPISTS IN ALGERIA. By T. L. L. Teeling, . . . . . 299

Invitation from the Resident-General of Madagascar to the Abbe of the Trappists; Alguebelle and the career of Abbe Martrin; Dom Francis Regis makes a journey to Algiers; The site of a camp chosen for a new monastery; A military Mass in the desert; Fearful trials of the new settlement; Conversion of the French painter, Horace Vernet; Wonderful success of the Trappists in agriculture; Sanguine views of their influence in the new Madagascar settlement.

THE SITUATION IN ROME. By W. J. D. Croke, . . . . . 330

Hopeless deadlock between the Papacy and the Italian Government; Vitality of the Roman question; The modernizing of the city; Jerry-building amidst the ruins of the Cæsars; The moral phenomena of the changing order; The Italian revolution a reproduction of the French; Both bourgeoisie movements; Subsidence of anti-clericalism, and a solid sentiment favorable to peace between the Quirinal and the Vatican; Papal forces held in reserve; The present deadlock injurious to the material concerns of Italy; Disastrous effects of the Dreibund upon Italian affairs; the possibilities of a settlement with the Papacy; Reserved attitude of the Sovereign Pontiff; The germs of a solution inseparable from the continuance of the present situation.

HOW THE TURK CAME TO CONSTANTINOPLE. By Bryan J. Clinch, . . . . 365

The late paradoxical position in Cretan waters and the Piræus; How the Christian powers regard Turk and Greek; Beginnings of the Turkish race; Struggle between the Iranian and the Turanian for the mastery of the Asiatic continent; Barbarism wins in the end; Respective social systems of East and West; Survival of the patriarchal mode among the orientals; Nomadic warrior shepherds; Edward O'Donovan's experience in Merv; Singular ethics of the Turcomans; Their sympathy for animals; Spread of Mahometanism among them; Became the successors of the Saracens on the overthrow of the Bagdad Caliphate; Establishment of the Seljukian Turks in Asia Minor; Gradual encroachments on the Greek Empire; Rise of the house of Osman; Its armies recruited by Christian boys seized as tribute; Schism and dissension between East and West favor the Turkish advance; The great victories of Amurath in Europe; Conquest of Servia, Roumelia, and Bosnia; Moslems support the Greek schismatics from motives of policy; Bajazet conquers Bulgaria and creates the title of Sultan; Boasts he will overrun Italy and feed his horse on the altar of St. Peter's; Is routed by Tamerlane in Asia, and dies in captivity; John Hunyades appears on the scene and drives the Turks beyond the Balkans; Neglects to follow up his victory; Hungarians defeated in next campaign; Rise of Mahomet II.; His savage character; Constantinople gradually surrounded by his armies; Last stand of the Greeks and heroic death of the Emperor Constantine; Fall of the city.

CHRISTIAN FAITH AND MODERN SCIENCE. By Very Rev. John B. Hogan, SS., D.D., . . . . . 382

Science sought to be set up as a new idol; No real conflict between true Science and true Religion; God the source of both; Draper, Huxley, and White; Illegitimate extensions of theology; The limits of papal infallibility; Galileo's case no criterion; The Church and usury; Absurd pretensions of Science, and erroneous limitation of the term; The solicitude of early believers for the integrity of their faith quite natural; Science too impetuous, and needs restraint; Protestant opposition more unyielding than Catholic, because of their dependence on the Bible alone; Rarity of the Church's interference in theologico-scientific questions; M. Brunetière on the failure of Science to establish its pretensions; A reverential attitude demanded both from scientists and religious defenders; the famous dictum of Gamaliel.

FRANCE'S AID TO AMERICA IN THE WAR OF INDEPENDENCE. By Richard H. Clarke, LL.D., . . . . . 399

Source and origin of the idea of "independence"; Colonists only maintaining the rights conferred by the British Constitution; The English Government the violators and aggressors; Americans driven by illegality into revolution; Loyalty of the Colonists only a little while before strikingly manifested; Hatred of England intense in France; Early thoughts of an alliance with the American Colonies; Acute previsions of the French Ministry; Genuine sympathy for American liberty in France; Bold ideas of the Duke de Choiseul; His prophetic declarations; British Ministry ignore Franklin's monitions; England denounces the "treason" of the American Colonists and at the same time sends money to Corsica to promote a rising against France; Withering answer of the Empress Catherine to the English request for Russian mercenaries; England scours the continent for hirelings; Hessians and Brunswickers promised "license to plunder and indulge their passions"; Marie Antoinette warmly espouses the American cause; Unselfish character of French and Spanish sympathy; Decisive interview of Beaumarchais with Lee; Lafayette's enthusiasm is fired when he hears of Concord and Lexington; Meeting with Washington; Gets Rochambeau to come and his army to follow; Tact of Louis XVI.; Frustrates the treason of Lee and Arnold at the battle of Monmouth; Amazing activity and military genius of Lafayette; The enthusiasm in France for America's cause spreads to Spain; Lafayette's immense sacrifices; A Treaty of Alliance with America signed at Versailles; Frederick the Great sends congratulations over Burgoyne's surrender; Exertions of Marie Antoinette to get D'Estaing's fleet dispatched; Glorious camaraderie of the French and American armies and fleets; Great losses of the French in the course of the war; Importance of the naval struggle.

PAGE

SCIENTIFIC CHRONICLE. By Rev. T. J. A. Freeman, S.J., . . . . . 424

Refinements of modern measurements; That unlucky number, thirteen; Ambergris.

CATHOLIC SECONDARY EDUCATION IN THE UNITED STATES. By Rev. John T. Murphy, C.S.Sp., . . . . . 449

Excellent organization of the Catholic parochial schools; Hopes of a better state of public opinion regarding the necessity of religion in primary education; Necessity of sustaining parochial schools; Scope of secondary education; Its decisive character at a critical period of life; Advantages possessed by non-Catholics in this important matter; Want of Organization among Catholics to attain this end; Great sacrifices of the religious orders; Poverty of resources; Deficiencies in grading facilities; Technical training a great desideratum; Suggestions for improved classification; Superiority of the High Schools: Arrangements possible to Catholics; Waste of Catholic resources amongst non-Catholic secondary institutions.

THE EPISCOPATE OF BISHOP BARAGA. By Richard R. Elliott, . . . . . 465

Wide extent of Bishop Baraga's jurisdiction; His ideal social elevation as well as religious; Labors of Father Point, S.J.; Influence of a wave of white immigration into Indian territory; Bishop Baraga goes to Europe for help; He gets munificent money-aid in Austria and procures priests in Dublin; The spiritual side of Bishop Baraga; His refined and beautiful disposition; Laborious character of his wide-spread episcopal duties; His influence transforms the character of the Indians; A fearful journey brings on a fatal illness; Profound grief of the Indians, as well as non-Catholics, at his demise; A memorable funeral day; Growth of Catholic institutions in his diocese during his episcopate; Vast material resources of the territory.

CATHOLIC SPAIN: ITS POLITICS AND ITS LIBERALISM. By Rev. Thomas Hughes, S.J., . . . . . 493

Reasons for Spain's resentment at American interference in the Cuban question; Admissions of Liberal misgovernment in the island; Masonic intrigues; The spoils system in Spain; Hollowness of political life; Apathy of the people; Analysis of Spanish Liberalism; intense Catholicism of the population; The Abbe Gayraud Prescott's and Washington Irving's pictures of Spain; Guizot's more enlightened views; Catholic civilization in Mexico compared with Anglo-American in the United States.

SOME REFLECTIONS ON EDMUND BURKE'S CENTENARY. By John J. O'Shea, 517

Dr. Johnson's estimate of Cicero and Burke; Bigotry of England in Burke's days; Burke's conservatism; His alleged inconsistency; His change of mind regarding Dissenters; Dr. Johnson on English persecutions in Ireland; Low condition of English civilization; Burke's aversion from the Volunteer movement in Ireland; Mr. Morley's essay on Burke; Burke's pleas for toleration to Catholics; Reasons for his failure to convince his audience; A typical Irishman.

DR. F. H. BRADLEY'S APPEARANCE AND REALITY—PRIMARY AND SECONDARY QUALITIES. By St. George Mivart, . . . . . 531

Interest of English Catholics in the work; The theory of subjective appearance; Objective qualities demonstrated; The author's poverty of language his great difficulty; Our apprehension of realities correct; "Barbarous metaphysics"; Sophisms of the idealists; Materialism set up as a criterion for intellect; Qualities mistaken for substance; A "bewildering circle" of the author's own making; A chapter of paradoxes.

ST. CYPRIAN AND THE HOLY SEE. By Rev. William Barry, D.D., . . . . 554

The late Archbishop of Canterbury's book; Inequality in literary workmanship; Shady dogmatic theology; Dr. Lightfoot's superiority; Tertullian's bold epigrams; Irenæus on uniformity; St. Cyprian's clear-cut statements on union and Church government; His letter to Pope Stephen; Dr. Benson's rendering of "Ecclesia principalis"; The deposition of Dioscorus, Patriarch of Alexandria; The Chair of Peter; Bossuet's lucid exposition; The Papal dignity strengthens the episcopate; Bellarmine's emphatic dictum on the Papacy confirmed by the trend of modern times.

A NEW OXFORD MOVEMENT IN ENGLAND. By Rev. James Kendal, S.J., . 578

Oxford and Cambridge Universities available to Catholics; More advantageous than the foundation of a Catholic university; The latent inherent power of the Church; The time opportune for Catholic participation in the intellectual struggle; Catholics need to know their own position exactly; The power of the pen and the press; Effect of the Christian social movement; Egotism in literature a non-Catholic trait; High example of the late Father Hecker; Distinctiveness in literature the true aim for Catholic writers.

PAGE

THE TURKISH STRUGGLE WITH CATHOLIC EUROPE. By Bryan J. Clinch, . 592

The Sultan still a Tartar enthroned; Early victories of the Hungarians; The stand of the military monks; Growth of the Turkish navy; Christian renegades; The conquests of Selim I.; Two hundred thousand Janissaries; Turkey a first-class military and naval power; Solyman the Magnificent; Divisions amongst the Christian powers; Fall of Belgrade and capitulation of Rhodes; Hungary overwhelmed; Protestants acknowledge Solyman's suzerainty; Vienna besieged; Triumphant resistance under Count Salm; Heroic defence of Malta; Solyman's advance checked by the devotion of Zriny; England becomes the supporter of the Turks; Selim the Drunkard captures Cyprus; The overthrow at Lepanto; Victories of Sobieski and Prince Eugene, and peace of Carlowitz.

JACQUES ANDRÉ EMERY. By A. L. Emery, . . . . . 605

Singular energy of character; Self-possession in revolutionary days; The massacre des Carmes; Arrested; Friends among "the sections"; Brought before Fouquier-Tanville; An understudy of the guillotine; Studying the "Summa" in prison; Consoles Marie Antoinette and makes many conversions; Released at the end of the Terror; Administration of the diocese of Paris; Interview with the First Consul; Arrested afresh; A great act of Papal supremacy; Tells Napoleon he is mistaken; The Emperor's respect for his opinion; Napoleon's amazing self-conceit; A sad parting; A memorable scene at the Tuileries; Trying position; Father Emery's wonderful tact; Napoleon vanquished in argument; Father Emery's illness and death.

THE OLD FAITH AND THE NEW WOMAN. By Rev. George Tyrrell, S.J., . . 630

Conservatism of the Church; Solid reasons for going slow; The extreme type of "New Woman" an abomination to Catholics; Individualism and Rationalism; The family the true unit; Protestants differ from St. Paul; The headship of the husband; True exaltation of woman under the Catholic system.

IN MEMORIAM: THE VERY REV. AUGUSTINE F. HEWIT, D.D., C.S.P., . . 646

SCIENTIFIC CHRONICLE. By Rev. T. J. A. Freeman, S.J., . . . . . 648

Glass bricks and buildings; Wood pulp.

WHAT DO WE READ? By R. J. M., . . . . . 673

General Decrees of the new Apostolic Constitution; Explanation of the Fourth Decree; Insidious literature; Protestant trend of the English language; Poisoned at its source; Wilful distortion of history; Janssen's and Pastor's services to truth; Falsehood in the Encyclopædias; The Jesuit in popular myths; Indiana and "The Story of Liberty"; The pretensions of "Science"; Spurious philosophy; The Catholic as represented by Protestant novelists; Anti-Catholic spirit of the secular press; Faults of Catholic writers; Dr. Brownson and Lady Fullerton; Marion Crawford's faults; The daily papers; What Catholics ought to do.

THE STRUGGLE OF POLISH CATHOLICITY WITH RUSSIAN ORTHODOXY. By Rev. Reuben Parsons, D.D., . . . . . 694

Europe's indebtedness to Poland; Fatal defects in the Polish Civil Constitution; Churchmen the chief martyrs to liberty in Poland; Schismatics and toleration; Effect of the partition upon the Orthodox faith; The Empress Catharine's sanguinary ukase; Voltaire's "Saint of the North"; De Maistre and Siestrzencewicz; Tolstoy's misrepresentations; Destruction of the Greek Uniate Church; Persecution of the Latin Catholics; Fidelity of the Ruthenians to Rome; Wholesale martyrdom; The Polish Catholics; The Czar Nicholas I. at the Vatican; Patriotism of the Polish clergy; Massacres in Warsaw; A fierce persecution; Mourawieff and Kauffmann begin a war of extirpation; Pius IX. dismisses the Russian Ambassador and breaks with the Czar.

PASSION-FLOWERS. By Alfred E. P. Raymund Dowling, B.A., Oxon., . . . 724

Antiquity of nature-worship; Extent of the flora connected with Christianity; The "folk-lore of flowers"; Flowers connected with our Lord's life and passion; Lenten flowers; Flora of the old Passion Plays; Delights of nature-study.

IMPRESSIONS PRODUCED BY "APOSTOLICÆ CURÆ." . . . . . 747

Low estimate of the Bull by the Anglican press; More sensible attitude of the English secular press; Canon Churton's shrewd prognostic; The "Encyclical" Satis cognitum; Cardinal Vaughn's keen dissection of that document; The outcry against the proposed fund for Anglican convert clergymen; The secession of "Fathers" Maturin and Cowley; Greek, Russian, and Anglican sympathies; Some hopeful indications in the present situation; The strong current of Ritualism.

FACT AND FICTION IN LITERATURE. By Rev. J. Kendal, S.J., . . . . . 760

Insatiable demand of the public for new novels; Different mental training in the old days and the present; Neglect of serious literature for the novel; Mental dyspepsia; In a severely practical age this is paradoxical; Fascinations of scientific study; Rational construction of an ideal novel; Dryness of the historical writers; A similar drawback noticeable in Catholic hagiology and Catholic art; The question of rational indulgence in light literature.

THE LAND OF RECURRING FAMINES. By John J. O'Shea, . . . . . 773

Isolation of India; A wall of impenetrability around its great tragedies; Courses of Indian famines; The money of the people swept away wholesale in taxation; Regularity of recurrence of famines almost mathematical; Warning of the Duke of Wellington; Enormous extent of alluvial waste lands in India; Rigid exactions of the British rule; More considerate policy of the old native princes; The land tax; The salt tax; The money-lenders follow in the wake of the British, but not allowed under the old system; Sir James Caird on the causes and prevention of famine; His recommendations unheeded; The enormous growth of population and the Malthusian doctrine; Is famine part of the settled policy of the ruling power? Lord Northbrook's and Sir Richard Temple's humane efforts; The establishment of a famine fund a mere bagatelle if it were desired; Confessed failure of England as a ruling power; Insolence and tyranny of the English colony; Litigious habits of the Hindoos.

PAGE

THE EXPULSION OF THE ACADIANS. By Frances W. Grey, . . . . . 787

M. Richard's "Acadia"; Disappearance of authoritative documents; Rudeness of Canadian officials; Search in the British Museum; Parkman's suppressions; Provisions of the Treaty of Utrecht; Endeavors of the English Governors to frustrate it; The Acadians prevented from migrating; Refusal of the Test-Oath; The Acadians determined to leave; Outrages of the English settlers; Treachery of Governor Armstrong; Acadian deputies imprisoned; The Lords of Trade disapprove of Armstrong's courses.

SPAIN AND CUBA. By Bryan J. Clinch, . . . . . 809

Discreditable attitude of the American press toward Spain; Prevalence of false reports regarding the insurrection; Past services of Spain to the United States altogether ignored; Insincerity of the general sympathy with the Cubans; Dislike of Spain because of its Catholicism inherited from English ancestry; England's land hunger; Spain standing on her rights; Ignorance of the real causes of the insurrection; Baneful effects of civil war; Failure of independent government in San Domingo; Troubled course of the South American republics since they shook free from the mother country; How Home Rule pacified the Basque population; The Spanish Constitution a model of liberality; Probability of Home Rule as a solution of the Cuban difficulty.

THE TOTAL ABSTINENCE MOVEMENT IN THE UNITED STATES. By Rev. John T. Murphy, C.S.Sp., . . . . . 819

Beneficial results of the prohibition agitation; Great success of the Catholic Church organizations in the total abstinence movement; Philadelphia a stronghold of this movement; Strong drink peculiarly unsuitable to the American temperament; Improvement in society habits; "Moderate drinkers" the most serious obstacle to reform; Fallacies about the benefits of alcohol; Total abstinence the crowning grace of manhood; It also forms the highest type of citizen; St. Augustine and St. Thomas Aquinas on the morality of wine-drinking; St. Paul's warning against scandal-giving; European habits not congenial to the circumstances of America.

RECENT PHASES OF BIBLE STUDY. By Rev. A. J. Maas, S.J., . . . . . 832

Situation created by the "higher criticism" controversy; The trend of inspiration theories; Absurdities of Mr. W. T. Stead's reasoning; The true meaning of inspiration; Views of Canon Farrar and other Protestant critics condemned by the Protestant bishops in New York; Catholic theologians on inspiration; The doctrine of St. Thomas; The views of Cardinal Franzelin; The bearing of scientific discoveries on the controversy; The argument on the attitude of Christ and the Apostles toward the Old Testament; Dr Lyman Abbott's treatment of the Story of Jonah; Dr. Harnack's new work damaging to the cause of "the higher criticism"; The Behnesa papyri confirmatory of Christ's divinity; Importance of the discovery in relation to Biblical chronology; The true line of study for Biblical scholars.

FROM MACHIAVELLI TO JOHN CALVIN, THROUGH JOHN MORLEY. Editor, 850

The Romanes Lecture; Machiavelli in "The Prince"; States, princes, and the moral law; John Calvin taken as an example of morality in civics; His iron rule in Geneva; Modern testimony to the permanency of its effects; Puritanism and modern liberty; Paradoxical deductions; Infelicity of Mr. Morley's illustration.

BUDDHA AND HIS DOCTRINE. By J. S. Geisler, . . . . . 857

Surprise of the first Christian missionaries at what they found in India; Theory of the importation of the Logos idea from thence; Demonstration of the possibility of a religion without God; Vast discrepancies in the estimates of Buddhist believers; Corruption of the Lamas; Dreamy and philosophic character of the Indian system; Similarity of its mythology to that of the Teutons; Different effect of the old system upon the Greeks; Exclusive system of the Brahmans; Early sensual career of Gotama; Surfeited with pleasure he flies to the other extreme and becomes an ascetic; Absurdity of the Buddhist myths; Influence of Arnold's "Light of Asia"; No similarity between Buddha and Christ; Buddha's so-called Gospel; The "temptation" of Buddha; Analysis of the Buddhist creed; Nothing in it but pure selfishness; No comparison between the system and that of Christianity.

SCIENTIFIC CHRONICLE. . . . . 876

A magno-microscope; Trebling the speed of railway travel; The limitations of carrier-pigeons; The generation of air-waves; The height of clouds; Photographing the whole starry firmament; Reclamation of swamps; Wild Indian corn; The bicycle as a disease-developer; Experiments in "Cold Lighting"; The Chinese clock system winning; Scientific value of noxious reptiles; Danger in the Turkish bath; Explosive shells of natural manufacture; Scientific jottings.

BOOK NOTICES.

PAGE.

Abbe de Broglie—Religion et Critique—Œuvre Posthume (M. l'Abbe C. Piat) 215

Abbe C. Piat, Prof. a l'Institut Cath. de Paris—L'Apologetique de l'Abbe de Broglie ..... 215

Abbe de Broglie; Questions Bibliques: œuvre extraite d'articles de Revues et de Documents Inedits (M. l'Abbe C. Piat) ..... 669

Ambassador of Christ, The (James Cardinal Gibbons)..... 208

Answer to Difficulties of the Bible (Rev. John Thein)..... 665

Brother Azarias' Essays. Vol I., Essays Educational, pp. 283; Vol. II., Essays Philosophical, pp. 250; Vol. III., Essays Miscellaneous, pp. 273. ....., ..... 213

Catholic Summer and Winter School Library: Lectures on Literature (Richard Malcolm Johnston) ..... ... 894

Edmund Campion—A Biography (Richard Simpson)..... 667

His Divine Majesty, the Living God (William Humphrey, S.J.) ..... 668

Historia Exercitiorum Spiritualium—S. P. Ignatii de Loyola (P. Ign. Diertins. S.J.) ..... 222

History of the Catholic Church in Germany During the Nineteenth Century. Vol. III. (Dr. Heinrich Brück) 220

Institutiones Theologicæ in Usum Scholarum (G. Bernardo Tepe, S.J.) 4 vol. .....221, 656

Institutiones Theologiæ Dogmaticæ (R. P. J. Herrmann, C.SS.R.)..... 656

Institutiones Theologiæ Dogmaticæ: Tract. de Deo Uno et Trino (Petro Einig, D.D.) ..... 656

Institutiones Psychologicæ Sec. Principia S. Thomæ Aq. ad Usum Scholasticum Accomodavit (Tilm. Pesch, S.J.)....., 209

La France et le Grand Schisme D'Occident (Noel Valois)..... 660

Leo XIII. and Modern Civilization (J. Bleecker Miller)..... 662

PAGE

"Les Saints"; Psychologie des Saints (Henri Joly)... ..... 661

Luther's "Saintly" Life and "Saintly" Death (Luther's "Heiliger" Leben und "Heiliger" Tod). (J. A. Kleis).. 219

Nova et Vetera· Informal Meditations for Times of Spiritual Dryness (George Tyrrell, S.J.)..... 671

Philosophia Lacensis sive Series Institutionum Philosophiæ Scholasticæ Edita a Presbyteris Soc. Jesu in Collegio Quondam B. Mariæ ad Lacum ..... 209

Pius VII.—1800-1823 (Mary H. Allies)..... 672

Poems, with other selections from Sister M. Genevieve Todd (Rt. Rev. F. S. Chatard, D.D.) ..... 893

Primaute de Saint Joseph d'Apres l'Episcopat Catholique et la Theologie (C. M., Prof. de Theologie)..... 665

Primer of Philosophy (Dr. Paul Carus).... 658

Prælectiones Dogmaticæ quas in Collegio Ditton—Hall Habebat Christianus (Pesch, S.J.)..... 221

Rome and England; or, Ecclesiastical Continuity (Rev. Luke Rivington, M.A.) ..... 671

Science and the Church (Rev. J. A. Zahm)..... 668

The Church and Modern Society (Most Rev. John Ireland)..... 218

The Formation of Christendom (T. W. Allies, K.C.S.G.)..... 669

The Jesuit Relations and Allied Documents..... 671

The Philosophy of Ancient India (Richard Garbe)..... 895

The Prophets of Israel (Carl Heinrich Cornill. D.D. Translated by Sutton F. Corkran)..... 666

Theologia Fundamentatis Auctore Ign. Ottiger, S. J. Tom 1. de Revelatione Supernat .....669, 890

Theologia Moralis Decalogalis et Sacramentatis. Novis Curis edidit P. F. Irenæus Bierbaum, O.S.F. (P. Patritio Sporer, O.S.F.)..... 892